YWCA WILL SELL BOOKS FOR FUNDS

A community-wide book sale to raise funds for YMCA youth service projects will be held at the YMCA building, 2080 Washington Ave., on Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15, according to Dick Brown, chairman of the event.
 The Torrance Y's Men's Club, which is collecting the volumes, issued a call for donations of books by local citizens who have extra volumes. Book pick-ups will be made for citizens who call the YMCA office.

The books will sell for a few cents each, Brown said, offering a good summer library for the buyers and money for the YMCA program.

More than 2000 books have been donated so far, he said, with titles including novels, detective stories, children's books, technical books, text books, many pocket books, and a large selection of best sellers.

Scout Troop 728

Twentyseven boys and two adults of Scout Troop 728 attended the Camporee held recently at O'Neill Park. This semi-annual camporee brings together troops of the harbor district for inspections, awards, and special events.

In olympic events, Troop 728, took one first, one second, and two thirds. One patrol, the "Headhunters," received a gold seal for being the best patrol, and the other three patrols of the troop received blue seals.

Kenneth Smith received the Order of the Arrow, and for the second year in succession, a member of this troop was selected as the best junior assistant scout leader. This year the award went to Mike Gibson, who will receive a two weeks training period at Philmont Ranch.

At a recent Scoutmaster's roundtable, Herman Boodman, Scoutmaster of Troop 728, received the Historic Trails awards for this troop. These emblems will soon be presented to each scout who participated in this event.

The troop is now awaiting the end of this month, when the troop will leave by chartered bus for Canada. For over a year and a half, the boys of this troop, have sold doughnuts, Christmas wrappings, Christmas trees, and had a scrap metal drive besides distributing pamphlets in their effort to raise the necessary funds to finance this trip.

Harcraft Brass Expansion Told

An extensive expansion program has just been completed by Harcraft Brass at the company's Torrance plant. New highly specialized facilities include electronic heavy duty plating equipment, an analytical control laboratory, and increased warehouse space.

"By completely integrating every phase of our manufacturing operation, we are better able to control the high quality standards that are synonymous with the Harcraft name," commented a company executive.

One of the most modern installations in the country, the new chrome plating equipment automatically transports parts through each cycle, thereby controlling the quality.

A pioneer in the field, Harcraft manufactures and nationally markets a complete line of plumbers' brass goods, fittings, stops, and flexible supplies. The Southern California firm maintains field warehouses in Atlanta, Chicago, Boston, and New York, with representatives in all the major trading areas.

Garden Chatter

By LORING BIGELOW

It is rather surprising how many people own spray type applicators which work from the water pressure on their garden hose, and it is even more surprising the large number of gardeners that do not know how to use them properly. Through improper use the results are far from satisfactory, and it is very easy to blame the spray attachment, the insecticide or fungicide contained therein, or the dealer from which it was purchased. More often than not, however, the blame rests upon the operator.

The first thing that should be determined is the equivalent size of the spray-gun. Your dealer will tell you, or it is always marked upon the jar beneath the gun itself. This jar is the one which holds the concentrate. It may be marked "1 1/2 gals.," "3 gals.," or in some cases as high as "20 gals." You should keep this equivalent in mind at all times, and you should also keep in mind the actual size of the jar so that if replacement is necessary that the same exact size is used.

These figures that are upon the container represent the total number of gallons of properly mixed poison which will be applied when the jar is holding the proper mixture and then emptied through water pressure.

Any insecticide or fungicide that you use gives the gallon equivalent to use in mixing. Should the instructions on the bottle of insecticide state to use at the ratio of one teaspoonful per gallon and your hose type sprayer is of the 1 1/2 gal. capacity type, you would place 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls of the material into the spray jar and fill the jar with water before attaching it to your hose. Should your gun be of 3 gal. capacity, you would use 3 gals. of the solution and then fill with water before attaching to the hose. If you should desire to mix only half the amount of spray material that is possible with the type gun that you own, this can be done by using a correspondingly less amount of insecticide as well as the water that you place into the jar.

The most common fault is to look at the jar itself and see that it is only a pint or quart and to then cut the manufacturers' recommendations. This should not be done, for the resulting mixture will be extremely weak.

Always remember to look upon the vessel below the gun nozzle as a container the size that it represents. Think of the container as being a 1 1/2 gal. bottle, a 3 gal. bottle, or a 20 gallon and to add the material accordingly.

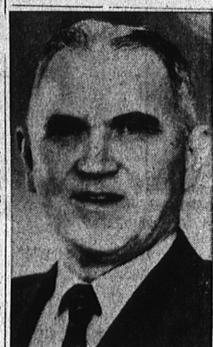

Never try to retain any material left over until the next spray time, and be sure to always clean the gun thoroughly with clear water. Do not have the faucet turned on full unless your water pressure is very, very low.

Diapers Made Like B-29
 A Torrance children's shop is now displaying most unusual baby diapers—they're shaped like a B-29.
 The directions, according to Guys 'N Dolls Children's Shop, read like a flight engineer's manual.
 For instance: "Just put your baby on the bulls-eye, wing section goes in back, tail section in front, bomb-bay snugs up in crotch to absorb like a sponge. To adjust for size, merely shorten the tail section in front before pinning."
 The B-29 (diaper, that is) was invented by a Texan, Fred Dexter. It is small enough to carry in your purse, wash in a small basin and dry one underneath another on a coat hanger.
